S. S. CONVENTION.

Interesting County Meeting
Largest Attended.

The 1912 Gathering of Lawrence
County Sunday School Delegates
Was One of the Best Yet.

What was probably the largest and what was certainly one of the most interesting Sunday School Conventions ever held in Lawrence County closed its sessions in the Louisa Baptist church yesterday. It opened at 10 a. m. Wednesday, and every meeting was largely attended with unabated interest throughout. The various schools in the county had sent delegates to the convention and these were guests of our citizens and were taken care of in the most hospitable manner. But these official delegates were by no means all who attended from other places. There must have been at least 200 visitors from all over Lawrence county. Some of these came as Sunday schools and brought capacious and well filled baskets of toothsome lunch.

The convention was called to order by County President, Mr. M. S. Burns, after which the business of the meeting was transacted according to the following program which was followed literally except in a few instances where the unavoidable absence of some one necessitated a change:

WEDNESDAY, JULY 10, 1912.
Morning Session.

10:00—Devotional Service, Dr. Archibald Cree.

10:15—Report of the County Secretary, O. J. Vaughan.

The Auditor.

THURSDAY, JULY 11, 1912.

Morning Session.

9:00—Devotional Service Rev. J. W. Crites.

9:15—Treasurer's Report O. J. Vaughan.

9:20—Home Study Elder C. M. Summers.

9:30—Echoes from the Field, of Officers of Magisterial Districts.

10:00—Teacher Training Elder C. M. Summers.

10:20—Song Service of the Sunday School, Dr. Archibald Cree.

10:45—Progress, L. M. Copley.

11:10—Stewardship, Rev. G. A. Joplin.

11:40—Report of Nominating Committee.

11:45—Installation of Officers.
12:00—Adjournment.

Afternoon Session.
Impromptu Speeches and Conferences.

The special features of the evening session were the annual address of President Burns, the address of Rev. G. A. Joplin, a solo by Miss Kate Freese and a duet by Miss Irene Porter and Mr. Will Cain. The address of Mr. Burns was a model of good sense and brevity. He spoke of the happy change made in the moral atmosphere in this county in the last ten years, mostly the result of work done by the 78 Sunday schools. He told of his labors during his two years as president of the association, saying they had been the happiest and best years of his life. Mr. Burns has certainly made an efficient officer.

Mr. Joplin spoke along original lines, with somewhat novel illustrations. Some things which he said during his address elicited hearty applause.

Buchanan Sunday School won the banner for the largest attendance at the convention. They had 62 present. Gallup had 57, Mt. Pleasant had 30 out of a total enrollment of 40.

Resolutions, reports and other matter pertaining to this most interesting gathering of Sunday school workers will appear in the NEWS next week.

The Rev. Dr. George W. Banks, pastor of St. Paul's M. E. Church, South, Parkersburg, W. Va., was married June 29 to Miss Christiana Thompson, the ceremony taking place at the Scott street M. E. Church South, Covington, Ky. Dr. Banks will be remembered here as one who delivered a splendid sermon at the Southern Methodist church while enroute to preach the baccalaureate sermon for the Sandy Valley Seminary, Paintsville.

TEACHERS INSTITUTE!

Lawrence County Teachers Will Spend Next Week in Louisa.

The NEWS is usually very sparing with its "astonishers," as printers call exclamation points, but it uses one in the caption of this paragraph in order to call attention to the fact that the institute will be in session next week, beginning on Monday, and to the further fact that if our people desire entertainment mixed with wholesome instruction they can get it by attending the daily meetings of the teachers. Time was when teachers' institutes were boring, but that time has passed, at least so far as this county is concerned. Instructors have found something far more interesting and important to talk about than old St. Coley, and the ancient bore has been relegated to limbo, the place where he mutters to himself about the whereforeness of the ego, with none to molest or make him afraid. Live, timely topics are now discussed, whereby the teacher is helped and the visitors are instructed and profitably entertained. Next week's institute will be full of good things, of interest and value to all to whom mental culture is worth anything. Men and women of more than State celebrity will be in the corps of instructors, and many subjects will be discussed by people who know how to talk and when to stop. Appropriate as much as possible of the week to yourself, and you will be greatly the gainer.

CAUGHT AND CAGED.

A young man named Jobe, charged with breaking into the residence of his uncle Elms Jehe, on Twin Branch, Tuesday, was arrested by Sheriff Carter the same day and brought to Louisa and lodged in jail.

The Independent Tribune of Huntington, has come to our exchange desk. It is published every afternoon, along the lines of the old Centennial Tribune, is clean looking and noway, and entitled to a fair share of patronage. The editor-manager is J. Ney Foster.

BIG OFFICIALS

Of Railroads and Coal Companies
Made a Trip Up Big Sandy.

Vice President Frank M. Whitaker and General Superintendent J. Paul Stevens, of the Chesapeake & Ohio and Freight Traffic Manager C. L. Thomas, of the Baltimore and Ohio and Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton roads, left last night for Ashland, Ky., where to-day they will join President George W. Stevens, of the C. and O. and President Daniel Willard and Vice President George F. Randolph, of the B. & O. system. They will take a run over the Big Sandy Division of the C. and O., as well as over the Sandy Valley and Elkhorn Road, which is being built by the B. and O. Interests from the fields of the Consolidated Coal Company. This road will cost $2,000,000 to construct, and it extends from the mouth of the Shelby River at Shelby, Ky., to the new model town of Jenkins. The fact that work was being done to create the town of Shelby and the Sandy Valley Road was printed in The Enquirer on June 14, 1911. This road will supply the C. and O. with coal, and the visit of the railroad officials is to arrange the traffic and transportation details.

Some of the Consolidation coal will be turned over to the C. & O. for the haul to Cincinnati, but the greater part of the black diamond traffic will be routed over the C. and O. and D. from Ironton. The B. and O. and C. and O. interests have formed a traffic agreement that will mean a great deal to the C. and O. D. which road at the present time gets all the coal in this city for the haul to Toledo. Last year the coal traffic through Cincinnati aggregated 4,100,000 tons and from present indications the amount of coal handled through here this year will go far beyond the 5,000,000-ton mark.

A number of coal operators will also be included in the inspection party. The Consolidation property comprises 100,000 acres. The Louisville and Nashville is also building toward the same region, and as the coal that road hauls will come through Cincinnati this city is destined to become the greatest inland coal center in the United States. The Norfolk and Western is also reaching out for the same region, and it is expected that some of its coal will come through this city. The fact that the N. and W. was going to build into the Kentucky coal fields from Norfolk, Va., was printed in The Enquirer June 14 last year.

It is likely that the officials will also have a conference with officials of the Carolina, Clinchfield and Ohio, which is building from Dante, Va., to Elkhorn City, Ky., where connection will be established with the Big Sandy Division of the C. and O. The two roads signed a traffic agreement on June 12, 1911, which is still in effect.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The party passed through Louisa about 9 p. m. Sunday enroute to Ashland.

ANOTHER NUISANCE.

A Louisa storekeeper who was scrubbing his floor and the sidewalk in front of his place of business stopped long enough to mutter an inverted blessing on the heads of the offenders who had split great pools of nastiness on his premises. He said there should be a law against such offending and so says the NEWS. Expectoration anywhere is a useless habit, and when it comes to emptying your mouth on a sidewalk or on the premises of another it is a nuisance of the worst sort.

DONE AT CALLED MEETING.

At a called meeting of the city council of Louisa held Tuesday, July 9, it was ordered that Apperson Ledge A. & F. M., pave the front of their lot, extending from Madison to Franklin street paved and the work be begun by August first. The fire ordinance defining the limits within which frame buildings may not be built was reenacted and

SPECIAL EVENTS PRIZES.

Prizes were awarded at the celebration of the Fourth in Louisa to many persons for excellence or prominence in certain lines. The NEWS thinks the following list of events and winners is complete:

Best saddle horse, Lawrence Akers, winner in fat man's race, Lindsey Wellman.

Men's bicycle race, Ham Wilson. Largest family on ground, William Young.

Fattest woman, Minnie Kirk. Ugliest man, Sammy Young. Bicycle race for girls, Mary Pigg. Three legged race, Homer Wellman and George Peters.

Prettiest girl from country, Emily Carey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lys Carey. Best Calthumpian, Miss Lizzie Queen, of Crum, W. Va.

Best decorated wagon, Lizzie Queen and Addie Heston.

Best fiddler, Jack Marcum. Youngest married woman, Mrs. Maud Burton Vinson, Glen Hayes, W. Va.

Neatest dressed Old Maid, Miss Joe Wilson.

THE GYPSIES GOT WET.

Miss Victoria Garred had planned a "Gypsy supper" for the entertainment of her guest, Miss Clarke, of Lexington, and other young friends, the affair to materialize on Tuesday evening last, at a point near M. G. Berry's, in South Louisa. The arrangements were first-class in every particular, and so was the storm that burst at the most inopportune moment possible. The gay crowd of lads and lassies had assembled with all the creature comforts adapted to such occasions, and the real gypsy fire had been lighted, when, with little warning, the record breaking storm of a half century fell upon them. Escape from its fury was impossible and everybody was drenched. One feminine gypsy told in four words how they looked as they dejectedly went home: "We were a sight."

ACCIDENTALLY SHOT.

Two Cases of Unintentional Wounding
by Gunshots.

Mrs. Lela Burns, of Chubberson, Boyd county, was accidentally shot and seriously wounded by a young man at her home at that place. She was in her garden, picking beans, and as she raised from a stooping posture the bullet, intended for a bird, entered her shoulder and passed to her lung, where it remains.

Her husband, a brother of Mr. R. T. Burns, of this city, is very ill with tuberculosis. He is past 80 years old.

Dr. T. D. Burgess was called to Van Lear Saturday to see W. H. Adams, head boss of the coal company's mines, who had been accidentally shot in the shoulder. Dr. Burgess returned Sunday and reported his patient doing as well as could be expected.

REFUSES TO PARDON.

Notice from the pardon attorney of the Department of Justice has been received by Representative J. W. Langley that President Taft has acted adversely on the petition for a pardon for L. H. Salyer, of Heller, Pike county, who recently was sentenced to five years in a Federal prison by Judge McDowell at Big Stone Gap Va., after Salyer had been found guilty of interfering with the procedure of a United States court.

Salyer had advised Kentucky witnesses in a "moonshine" case not to respond to a subpoena from Judge McDowell's court. It was shown by testimony adduced, at the instance of Mr. Langley and others the President ordered an investigation by the Department of Justice with a view of determining whether Salyer had interfered intentionally with the court and as to the merit of a numerous signed petition for Salyer's pardon.

Prof. M. M. Morelock, of Haynesville, Louisiana, has been elected President of Sandy Valley Seminary Paintsville to succeed Dr. Skinner.

A GOOD SERMON.

Rev. Fred. F. Shannon, of Brooklyn Preached Here Sunday.

Back to the place of his birth; back to the scene of his boyhood and the home of a proud father and mother, back to the little city where live so many who are glad to welcome the boy—boy no longer—whose course they have watched with satisfaction and with a feeling of proprietorship, the Rev. Frederick Shannon stood in the pulpit of the M. E. Church South on last Sunday morning, before an audience as large as the spacious building could comfortably hold, and preached to them of the weakness and futility of unbelief and the victorious omnipotence of a saving belief in God and His Son. The scripture lesson had sounded the keynote, the mere hint of the masterly contrasting pictures of the sermon. The choir had voiced its ascription to the Blessed Three in One, and the soloist had declared in a tuneful rhythm that "other refuge" than Jesus, the lover of souls, there was none, and so, with such fitting prelude, the gifted Louisiana began his message to the waiting people. He said that he was glad to be here again and to preach to his friends, young and old. He had been asked, he said, if it were not difficult to preach in his home town, and he had answered that to him it was easy, and those who heard Mr. Shannon on this occasion for the first time found what his old friends already knew, that it is indeed easy for him to face a congregation in the place of his nativity and declare unto them the whole counsel of God.

Mr. Shannon had found in Mark and in Hebrews passages which told of the power of faith and the weakness of unbelief, and with these to form a foundation he built up and showed to his hearers a structure of original thought and ideas, clothed in eloquent phrase and perfect diction. The utter emptiness and absolute weakness of unbelief were shown so strongly that an unbeliever who heard the strong, simple words of the preacher and saw with mental vision the striking illustrations must have hated himself for his doubts and disbelief. On the other hand he who had found and kept his faith in God and His Son must have had that faith renewed when the preacher told of what faith had done for the world and for man.

Mr. Shannon declared, what is indeed strange, that, contrary to general opinion, the Bible contains no definition of faith. True, there is the declaration that faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen, but this, he declared, was the result of faith. "Every cynic is the one who has lost faith." Faith in Jesus Christ gives a man victory over himself, and the hardest thing a man has to overcome is himself. Have faith in your heavenly Father, even as the Swiss boy on the Alps had faith in the strong arm of his earthly father, and all will be well with you.

AGAIN THE "TOY" PISTOL.

Richard, the 9 year old son of Rev. H. B. Hulett, was the victim of one of those dangerous weapons called a toy pistol last Thursday. An unknown boy fired twice into Richard's leg, inflicting wounds which bled profusely and caused great pain. The wounded lad received surgical aid and is now doing well. The same pistol was fired at several other boys on the same day. He is learning well how to become a violator of the law.

OPERATION FOR APPENDICITIS.

On Saturday night last Mrs. Roy Wright, accompanied by her husband, and Dr. Rutherford of Thacker, was brought from Matewan, W. Va., and taken to Riverview hospital. An examination revealed the fact that she was suffering from appendicitis and that an operation for her relief was necessary. This was done early on Sunday morning and Mrs. Wright is now doing very well.

BIG DEAL IN POPLAR TIMBER.

One of the biggest timber deals consummated in Ky. in several years was closed in Lexington Wednesday by the sale of about 6,700 fine poplar trees valued at $75,000 located on a tract of land in Letcher county. The purchase was made by Floyd Day & Co., of Jackson, from McLin, Milburne & Co. The trees comprising the purchase are said to form the finest lot of poplar timber in Kentucky.

Plans have been made to develop the timber at once, and a number of sawmills will be placed by Floyd Day & Co., in the vicinity of the boundary for that purpose.

THE LOCAL OIL FIELD.

There is not much to report from the oil field. The Little Blaine Oil company's well should reach the Berea sand tomorrow.

The Hamilton-Roberts well will be started in a few days. Also, the Wayne Oil company will begin a well near Yatesville as soon as the machinery and rig can be erected.

It is said the Cumberland Pipe Line company has a representative here now, proposing to build the pipe line from Busseyville to Louisa. If they will make reasonable terms with the local company and the oil operators it is probable the enterprise will be turned over to them.

DEATH OF CAPTAIN CHASE.

It may interest the former friends of Capt. Edwin A. Chase, who had charge of the improvement of the Big Sandy river to know that he died in the Soldier's Home, Leavenworth, Kansas, on the 12th, of last December. He was a veteran of the Civil War, a member of the Rhode Island artillery, and was wounded in the great battle of Gettysburg. He was a genial, warm hearted man, a staunch friend and his own worst enemy. Peace to his ashes.

FOLLOWS CLEANLINESS.

Good Health Dependent Upon Clean Premises.

Civic health follows civic cleanliness. To be dirty as an individual is to be personally sick. To be dirty as a town is to be unhealthy as a town. To be sick as a citizen is inconvenient and costly, and to be sick as a town is depressing and expensive to the whole community.

These are truisms, but not so self-evident that it is not sometimes necessary to call attention to them. A good woman who spoke at the town meeting the other night said, and said truly, that she kept her premises clean. Suppose every woman in the city of Louisa did the same thing, and suppose that in addition screened, perfectly against the fly and drank no water that was not absolutely pure? If this were done it is entirely safe to say that, barring accidents and old age, the death rate of the adult population of Louisa would be next to nothing. The death dealing power of that winged insect which first visits every cesspool and then flies in the neighborhood and then comes in your unscreened door or window, and promenades across the butter on your table or takes an involuntary bath in your child's milk, is inconceivable. The fly revels in all sorts of dirt and corruption, and when he has contaminated and infected with a deadly germ the food you eat and the result is death, your negligence is directly chargeable with what we in our ignorance call the act of God.

Some people think they must have a hog pen on their premises, and the State Board of Health says it is unlawful to keep one within the corporate limits of a town. Well, if you must have such a bouquet about your premises for heaven's sake keep it clean both for the good of its occupants and the surrounding atmosphere. Use lots of water daily on the pig and his pen, and the result will be doubly gratifying.

Don't forget that the vault on your premises is a menace to the

WEST VIRGINIA NEIGHBORS.

Charleston, W. Va., July 1.—The state board of public works today fixed the state levy at 1 cent on the hundred dollar valuation, the lowest in the history of the State. In 1911 it was 2 1-2 cents and in 1905, 35 cents. The total valuation of all property this year will be over one and one-quarter billions. The state constitution forbids the removal of all state taxes.

Charleston, July 1.—By order of the state board of public works the sum of $499,285.42 has been transferred to the general school fund from the state fund. During the year just ended there was collected for the general school fund the sum of $300,714.59, and the above transfer was necessary to bring the sum up to $750,000 as required by law. Last year the amount transferred was $412,716.01.

On last Monday a charter was issued by the Secretary of State to the Interval Oil & Oil Co., of Huntington; chief works in Chapmansville district, Logan county, and elsewhere in the state; incorporated to do a general oil and gas developing and producing business. Authorized capital stock, $500,000; amount subscribed, $25,000; amount paid in, $2,500; incorporators, Sabin W. Cotton, Jr., Clarence Sill, Geo. L. Estabrook and M. O. Saunders.

R. L. Stone, 48, civil engineer and one of the most prominent and respected citizens of Logan county, died at three o'clock Saturday, after an operation for appendicitis in a Huntington hospital.

Mr. Stone, who resides at Big Creek, became suddenly ill while at Hamlin conducting a business deal, and was taken to Huntington Friday evening. The operation was performed Friday night, the surgeons holding no hope for his recovery from the beginning owing to the aggravated nature of the case. Although he rallied perceptibly after the operation his symptoms and known condition were such that his family and friends were warned to prepare for the worst.

The Ministers' Deacons' and Laymen's Institute of the Twelve Pole Association of Baptist, met with the Big Hurricane church on the Fifth Sunday, and Friday and Saturday before in June. The local attendance was good, in fact it was much better than usual, and the interest was good throughout. There were present eleven of the Ministers of the Association, and the entire program was carried out, and in addition, thereto an interesting temperance meeting was provided for on Sunday morning, in which E. T. Billups preached a Temperance sermon. There were arrangements made looking further into the prosecution of the Prohibition amendment.

The production of coal in West Virginia in 1911 according to E. W. Parker, in a statement issued by the United States Geological Survey, was 59,831,580 short tons, valued at $53,670,515.

West Virginia, for the last three years the second in rank among the coal-producing States, stands almost alone in one particular—the low average price at which its coal, some of it the highest grade bituminous coal produced in the United States, brings to the producer. The only State that compares with West Virginia in this particular is Virginia, whose coal areas in the southwestern part of the State are contiguous to those of southern West Virginia, the conditions affecting the production and marketing of the product of both States being similar. Neither State has any well-developed local markets, and at least 80 per cent of the output is shipped to distant points for consumption. The highest average price for West Virginia coal recorded in the last eight years was in the boom year, 1907, when it reached 99 cents a short ton. In 1911 the average price for West Virginia coal was 90 cents.

At a late hour Thursday night, July 4th, Marie Coleman, a woman aeronaut of Chattanooga, Tenn., narrowly escaped drowning at a point near Logan, W. Va., when while parachuting to earth from her balloon she dropped into the Onyiah river. Her accident followed the second flight of the day. She had given a pyrotechnical display from the basket of the balloon during which she drifted slightly to the west of the city. As she cut loose from the balloon and shot down towards the earth, she heard the whistle of a locomotive.

When You Think

Of the pain which many women experience with every month it makes the gentleness and kindness always associated with womanhood seem to be almost a miracle. While in general no woman rebels against what she regards as a natural necessity there is no woman who would not gladly be free from this recurring period of pain.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well, and gives them freedom from pain. It establishes regularity, subdues inflammation, heals ulceration and cures female weakness.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. All correspondence strictly private and sacredly confidential. Write without fear and without fee to World's Dispensary Medical Association, R. V. Pierce, M. D., President, Buffalo, N. Y.

If you want a book that tells all about women's diseases, and how to cure them at home, send 21 one-cent stamps to Dr. Pierce to pay cost of mailing only, and he will send you a free copy of his great thousand-page illustrated Common Sense Medical Adviser—revised, up-to-date edition, in paper covers. In handsome cloth-binding, 31 stamps.

the tracks. Mrs. Coleman threw down the red light. The train crew was attracted and, seeing her sweep across the right of way and plunge into the river, went to her rescue in a light boat. The woman was almost dead when hauled into the boat.

Charley Osenton, the Fayette warrior, occupied a peculiar niche during the convention at Baltimore. He was one of the original Clark hoosers from West Virginia, and the delegates from his home county were early instructed for the Speaker. But Osenton has been a Bryan man for the last 16 years, and he was one of the West Virginians who refused to desert the Nebraskan when the national committee and the convention late selected Judge Alton B. Parker for temporary Chairman of the convention. Osenton remained loyal to Clark from beginning to end, but he deserted the organization from his native state when it chose to go to Parker when opposed by the Commoner. He fought valiantly for the Nebraskan among the West Virginia delegates, and on the vote mustered six votes for his choice out of the 16 representatives from the Pan-handle State.

West Virginia Republicans are facing the same crisis they experienced in 1908, when there were two Republican state tickets in the field. This year they safely rounded the curves in the nomination of a state ticket, the initial state-wide primary ending with probably more satisfaction than had been given for a dozen years. The Republican prospects immediately after the nomination of state ticket were encouraging to the leaders. Then came Chicago.

Now the Republicans of the State with the abandonment of the factional warfare in state matters, are facing a split on the national ticket, with the probable entry of the progressive party headed by the Sage of Oyster Bay. The sixteen delegates from West Virginia to the Chicago convention wore among those who entered a silent protest to the nomination of President Taft by refusing to vote on the nomination of a nominee for President.

Since their return to their native heath the West Virginia delegates, all of whom were Roosevelt leaders, have been as quiet as a punctured tire after the explosion. To the present they have given no sign that they intend to support the "regular" nominee of the party and when interrogated about their regularity, mutter a few exclamations which sound like "scandalous," "brazen," "theft," "robbery" and "piracy."

Carl C. Coalter, the Republican nominee for the State Senate in the Seventh District, was at the capital during the week, and was confident that the situation would clarify before the campaign begins in earnest. Like nearly every other candidate, Coalter is making no effort to provoke a controversy with either the Taft or Roosevelt followers, but believes he can discern a ray of light in his district through dissatisfaction with Governor Wilson.

FOR CONGRESS.

We are authorized to announce the candidacy of
W. J. FIELDS, of Carter County, for Representative in Congress from the Ninth district, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

Governor Wilson is able to and does—keep his mouth shut.
Perhaps this is why they say he has a "prognathous" jaw.

With a view to naming a campaign committee and settling differences existing among various city and county committees, the Republican State Central Committee held a meeting at the Galt House Thursday.

The new fiscal year for the federal government opens with a cash balance of $99,360,000 in the vaults.
It is to be added that it is the biggest available since 1911—but it is also to be added that it was a Democratic house that brought it about.

Poor old moon! Lots of things have been charged to her. Drouths, wars, pestilence, assassinations, fires, floods, potato crops, curled clapboards and swiken fence rails.
But the worst has finally happened.
They say the changes of the moon control Theodore Roosevelt.—Cynthiana Democrat.

Of the election of the Baltimore ticket we can not entertain the shadow of a doubt. Nothing except its identification with Mr. Bryan could hurt it. That it will quickly survive. No party butchered as the Republican party—no candidate discredited as the Republican nominee—can hope to carry the country.—Courier-Journal.

Adela Glinger, heiress to millions and orphan niece of Antonio Ru-mirez, Guatemalan coffee king, was refused entry at San Francisco by immigration officials because her uncle could not produce legal proof of his guardianship. When a girl whose front name is Adela and the rear one Glinger can go where she pleases we exclaim with Shakespeare, "What's in a name?"

The Courier-Journal yesterday says:

"In a contest between three tickets, headed respectively by Taft, Roosevelt and the devil, the Courier-Journal, being a daily newspaper and unable to take to the woods, perforce is obliged to support His Satanic Majesty."

With Roosevelt's and Ollie James' experience before him we should not think Mr. Watterson would nominate himself.—Cynthiana Democrat.

A nation-wide movement to induce President Taft to withdraw as a candidate, backed by many Republican officeholders, with several members of Congress as sponsors, will be launched with the simultaneous circulation of petition in every State of the Union within a week, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Washington. If the movement gains volume, these same men will ask Col. Roosevelt to withdraw and permit a compromise selection.

"We Win With Woodrow Wilson" Best day's work the democrats ever did when they named Gov. Woodrow Wilson, Tuesday, as their candidate for President. As Henry Watterson said of him before Henry established his famed "court of honor," Woodrow Wilson is the intellectual light of the democratic party. He is the deepest thinker.
The most advanced progressive.
The man of action as well as words.
His administration in New Jersey is a wonderful record of brilliant achievements, a strict performance of every ante-election promise, a firm establishing of democratic principles, a retina to the people of the power of government, Wilson is a man of the people who believes in the people's right to rule. He dis-places "class" and "cast"—a plain, everyday man who recognizes the rights of all other men, and who is ready to help others fight for them.

He is the man of the hour.—Cynthiana Democrat.

Corn Growers Enlarge Scope.

At the last business meeting of the Kentucky Corn Growers' Association it was decided to enlarge the scope of its work in order to include other farm crops. At the next annual show in January wheat, oats, cowpeas and soy beans will be added to the list. This notice is given in order that all who desire to do so may reserve material for these exhibits.

Attention is also called to the fact that a special feature of the next corn show will be the awarding of a fifty dollar silver pitcher, offered by the Lexington Commercial Club, for the best showing of profits on an acre of corn by any resident of Kentucky of any age.
This trophy must be won twice by the same person before becoming the permanent property of the winner. It was awarded last year to L. V. Hooper, of Morganfield. An itemized expense account, including all labor, must be kept on this contest.

To Recommend Primary Officers.

The Democratic and Republican committees of each county will meet shortly to recommend a list of election officers for each precinct to serve at the first State primary on August 3. The selections of election officers for the primary must be made by the County Boards of Election Commissioners by July 19.
Much interest is being aroused all over the State in the new way of making party nominations and the election will be watched with interest. For the first State primary the 1911 registration governs and no one not registered as a Democrat or Republican will be permitted to vote. Those who are enrolled as Independents will have no voice in the State primary this year, or any other year, for that matter, unless they are put down as Democrats or Republicans.

SCHOOL NOTES.

Teachers Examination will be held at Louisa, Friday and Saturday July 19, 20. No applicant will be permitted by law to enter examination who does not attend the Teacher's Institute held July 15, 19.

The institute will commence promptly at 8:30 a. m. Monday, I would like for each teacher to have his $1.50 in change ready, so that it will be time as possible will be taken up in enrollment and organization.

Several able speakers from different parts of the State will address the institute at different times and I trust that not only teachers but many others from the country and town will be present at all the sessions.

Everybody interested in the welfare of the schools and the children is not only invited, but urgently requested to attend both the day and evening sessions.

There will be evening sessions,
Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday and lectures will be given by Professor Ireland Coates, Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart and others.

QUEEN IDEAS OF FUN.

During the ball game here last Friday one boy shot another in the leg with one of these infernal austances called toy pistols. A piece of meat as big as the end of your finger was torn out of the lad's limb, and he bled like a stuck pig.
The pistol user said he did it for fun.

Power House Injured By Lightning.

During one of the numerous thunder storms which occurred last week the power house of the Louisa Coal Co.'s plant at Torchlight was struck by lightning and badly damaged. The generator was burned out, and as a consequence coal operations at that place have been very much deranged.

community. It is a nuisance which, as matters now stand, cannot be abolished but it can be greatly mitigated. Sulphate of iron—plain old copperas—is the chemical enemy of the decomposition which causes the fearful odor from these places, and copperas is, or should be, cheap. A pound dissolved in a bucket of hot water and thrown into the vault once a week will produce excellent results, and a pound should not cost more than five cents.

Rats are disease carriers, but if you will not leave your scraps where the rodents can get at them, and keep your food properly covered, the undermining chimp with the long tail will give your home a wide berth.

Finally, eat none but wholesome, clean food, avoid hydrant water as a beverage, swat the fly, keep yourselves and your premises clean, and your days will be long in the land which the Lord has given thee.

$100 Reward, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send

The deceased was the father of Mrs. Sam Dock Smith.

A HARD STORM.

What was probably the worst storm in the history of the town swept over Louisa about five o'clock last Tuesday afternoon. The wind blew with great force, tearing up many trees by the roots and breaking off others over with the ground. The rain fell in torrential floods, causing the water to run from curb to curb in many streets. In front of Burchett's feed store the water was so deep that several boys took advantage of the occasion and actually swam in the muddy current. The need of proper and sufficient drainage in Louisa was forcibly shown. The area of the storm was small, but where it did strike it was surely felt.

Democratic Platform in Brief.

Reaffirms party's devotion to the principles of Democratic government as formulated by Jefferson.

Declares for a tariff for revenue only and denounces "the high Republican tariff as the principal cause of the unequal distribution of wealth."

Favors immediate downward revision of present duties, especially upon necessities of life. Also favors gradual reduction so as not to interfere with or destroy legitimate industries.

Denounces President Taft for vetoing tariff bills for last Congress.

Condemns Republican party "for failure to redeem its promises of 1908 for downward revision."

Takes issue with the Republican platform as to the high cost of living, contending it is largely due to high tariff laws.

Favors vigorous enforcement of the criminal features of the anti-trust law.

Demands such additional legislation as may be necessary to crush private monopoly.

Favors prohibition of holding companies, interlocking directors, watering, etc.

Condemns Republican administration for "compromising with Standard Oil Company and the Tobacco Trust."

Denounces as "usurpation" the efforts of Republicans to deprive States of their rights and to enlarge the power of the Federal Government. "There is," says the platform, "no twilight zone between the nation and the State in which exploiting interests can take refuge from both."

Urges people to support proposed constitutional amendment pending in various States Legislatures, providing for an income tax and election of United States Senators by direct vote of the people.

As justification of the demands of the party for publicity of campaign expenditures, attention is directed "to the enormous expenditures of money in behalf of the President and his predecessor in the recent presidential contest."

Declares for presidential primaries. Directs National Committee to provide for selection at the primaries of members of the National Committee.

Pledges party to enactment of law prohibiting campaign contributions by corporations and unreasonable campaign contributions by individuals.

Favors single presidential term and making President ineligible to reelection.

Felicitates Democratic Congress and its record, enumerating important achievements, and pledges an adequate navy.

Denounces Republican administration on charge of extravagance and demands return to simplicity and economy befitting a Democratic government.

Favors efficient supervision and rate regulation of railroads; express companies; telegraph and telephone lines, and a valuation of these companies by the Inter-State Commerce Commission and also legislation against over-issuance of stocks by these corporations.

In connection with a demand for such a revision of the banking laws as will give temporary relief in case of financial distress, there is a denunciation of the Aldrich bill prepared by the monetary commission.

The present method of depositing government funds is condemned, and the party is pledged to the enactment of a law for the deposit of such funds by competitive bidding in State or national banks, without discrimination as to locality.

Recommends investigation of agricultural credit societies in Europe to ascertain whether a system of rural credits may be devised suitable to conditions in the United States.

Pledges party to enactment of legislation to prevent devastation of lower Mississippi valley by floods, and the control of the Mississippi is declared to be a national rather than a State problem. The maintenance of a navigable channel is also recommended.

Favors national aid regarding post roads.

Repeats party's declaration of the platform of 1908 as to rights of labor and pledges the party to an employees' compensation law.

Declares the unnecessary withdrawal of public land tends to retard development and bring reproach upon the policy of conservation; that reservations should be limited to purposes which they purport to serve; favors broadest liberality in administering land laws and says forest reserve act permitting homestead entries within the national forest should not be nullified by administrative regulations and declares for immediate action to make available Alaskan coal lands and safeguarding of the lives of miners.

Favors encouragement of agriculture and legislation to suppress gambling in agricultural products.

Believes in fostering growth of a merchant marine and urges speedy enactment of laws for greater security of life and property at sea.

Reaffirms previous declarations regarding pure food and public health.

Favors reorganization of the civil service and says law should be honestly and rigidly enforced.

Recommends law reform legislation.

Reaffirms position against "policy of imperialism and colonial exploitation" in Philippines.

Welcomes Arizona and New Mexico to sisterhood of States.

Demands for Alaska full enjoyment of rights and privileges of territorial form of government.

Refers to Russian treaty and renews pledge to preserve "sacred rights of American citizenship at home and abroad."

Favors parcels post and extension of rural delivery.

Favors as much encouragement as properly can be given Panama Canal Exposition.

Commends to the States adoption of law making it an offense to discriminate against the uniform of the United States army.

Renews declaration of the last platform regarding generous pension policy.

Refers to the rule of the people and says: "The Democratic party offers itself to the country as an agency through which the complete overthrow and extirpation of corruption, fraud and machine rule in American politics can be effected."

The conclusion of the platform says: "Our platform is one of principles which we believe to be essential to our national welfare," and invites co-operation of all citizens who believe in "maintaining unimpaired the institutions and traditions of our country."

Wilson's Nomination.

—Chicago Tribune (Ind. Rep.): The Democratic party is to be congratulated upon the choice of Gov. Wilson. It also owes a debt of thanks to Mr. Bryan, whose successful fight in the convention against reactionary plutocracy will go down to posterity as one of the most dramatic exhibitions of the people our political history has shown.

—Atlanta Journal: The party is to be congratulated.

—Nashville Tennessean and American: His nomination is a conspicuous and decisive victory for a great man, a great party and a great people.

—Chicago Record-Herald: Gov. Wilson is a moderate and sane radical, a constructive radical, a student of history, political science and economics. He is a serious thinker and capable administrator. His record as executive of New Jersey, although not rich, for he is a new figure in political life, is in every way creditable and promising.

—Boston Globe: Woodrow Wilson fits the era. No better choice could have been made.

—St. Louis Republic: While Woodrow Wilson is the beneficiary of the wrong done to Champ Clark, the Republic doubts not that he is the innocent beneficiary.

—Philadelphia Record: No party ever nominated a candidate for President more free to enter the presidency as the impartial representative of the whole people.

—Pittsburgh Post: Woodrow Wilson, of New Jersey, nominated for President of the United States by the Democrats after one of the most remarkable contests in the history of American politics, will be accepted by every State in the Union as the wisest and best choice that could possibly have been made.

—Baltimore Sun: The news that Woodrow Wilson has been nominated for the presidency seems almost too good to be true.

—Cleveland Plain Dealer: Democracy puts forward its strongest candidate for the presidency in Woodrow Wilson, of New Jersey.

—Cincinnati Enquirer: The Democratic party, true to its pledge to the people of the country, nominated a progressive. There is going to be a mighty interesting campaign this fall.

—Indianapolis Star (Ind.): The first duty of every honest man and newspaper toward the result at Baltimore is to recognize in the clearest and most specific manner possible that a great progressive victory has been won.

—Evansville Courier (Dem.): The ticket will meet with general satisfaction. It will grow in popular esteem as the campaign progresses. The weakness of Wilson as a candidate before the convention was held—his lack of ability to touch the popular enthusiasm—will disappear as the campaign progresses.

—Philadelphia Public Ledger: The Democratic National Convention has displayed the highest degree of political strategy in nominating Woodrow Wilson as its presidential candidate, and at the same time has chosen the man who can and will practically eliminate Roosevelt's third-term party.

—New York Herald: Hats off to the Governor! He has won, and only congratulations will go to him from the Herald today. His work is cut out for him. He may not know it, but he is "on his way," and that way is the way of a radical of the radicals. During the preliminary campaign he was a conservative radical in the East. But he was a radical-radical in the West, and but for the West he would not have been nominated at Baltimore.

—Pittsburgh Post: The result is a progressive ticket and a progressive platform, appealing to the wisdom of every progressive in the nation.

—Springfield Republican: The nomination of Woodrow Wilson for the presidency by the Democratic party is one of the most encouraging and inspiring events brought about in American politics for many years.

—New York Times: For the country the nomination made at Baltimore will be reassuring. For the Democratic party it means salvation, it means deliverance out of bondage to delusion and heresy.

—New York World: The United States is back to the benediction pronounced by Abraham Lincoln on the battlefield of Gettysburg—"that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom, and that government of the people, by the people and for the people shall not perish from the earth."

—Cleveland Plain Dealer: Democracy puts forward its strongest candidate for the presidency in Woodrow Wilson, of New Jersey.

—New York American: It does not follow and we do not believe that Gov. Wilson made any deal or had any understanding with the interests which finally secured his nomination. Upon this belief in Gov. Wilson's innocence of any connection with these evil forces, we are going to support him in this election. But while we do this, we need not forget to honor and to eulogize that great Missouri Democrat who was by these interests made the martyr for his real progressive Democracy.

A. "FLY CATECHISM."

The Board of Health of Indianapolis, Ind., has issued a "Fly Catechism" which it would be well for all Christian Herald readers to commit to memory, particularly at this time of the year, when every effort made in exterminating this national pest will count for so much more than it would later in the season, when so many more billions of flies will have been brought into existence. It follows:

1. Where is the fly born? In manure and filth.
2. Where does the fly live? In every kind of filth.
3. Is anything too filthy for the fly to eat? No.
4. (a) Where does he go when he leaves the vault and the manure pile and the spittoon? Into the kitchen and the dining room. (b) What does he do there? He walks on the bread, fruit and vegetables; wipes his feet on the butter and bastes in the buttermilk.
5. Does the fly visit the patient sick with consumption, typhoid fever, and cholera infantum? He does—and may call on you next.
6. Is the fly dangerous? He is man's worst pest and more dangerous than wild beasts or rattlesnakes.
7. What diseases does the fly carry. He carries typhoid fever, tuberculosis and summer complaint. How? On his wings and hairy feet. What is his correct name? Typhoid Fly.
8. Did he ever kill any one? He killed more American soldiers in the Spanish-American War than the bullets of the Spaniards.
9. Where are the greatest number of cases of typhoid fever, consumption and summer complaint? Where there are the most flies.
10. Where are there the most flies? Where there is the most filth.
11. How shall we kill the fly? (a) Destroy all the filth about the house and yard; (b) pour lime into the vault and un the manure; (c) kill the fly with a wire-screen paddle, or sticky paper, or kerosene oil.
13. Kill the fly in any way but—KILL THE FLY!

If you are a housewife you cannot reasonably hope to be healthy or beautiful by washing dishes, sweeping and doing housework all day, and crawling into bed dead tired at night. You must get out into the open air and sunlight. If you do this every day and keep your stomach and bowels in good order by taking Chamberlain's Tablets when needed, you should become both healthy and beautiful. For sale by Louisa Drug Co.

SHE GAVE UP ALL HOPE

Physicians Failed to Help Mrs. Green, But She Finally Found Relief in Cardul.

Meetez, Va.—Mrs. J. C. Green of this place, says: "I suffered with womanly troubles so that I could hardly sit up. Two of the best doctors in our town treated me, and I tried different medicines, until I gave up all hope of ever getting well."

One day, I decided to try some Cardul. It did so much for me that I ordered some more, and I ordered more. Today, I feel as well as I ever did in my life.

The pains and the trouble are all gone. I feel like another person in every way. I wish every sufferer could know what Cardul will do for sick women."

A few doses of Cardul at the right time, will save many a big doctor bill, by preventing serious sickness. It tones up the nervous system, and helps make pale cheeks fresh and rosy. Thousands of weak women have been restored to health and happiness by using Cardul. Suppose you try it. It may be just the medicine you need.

When Cupid Napped

By John Charlton

Copyright, 1931, by Associated Literary Press.

His name was Giles Weedon, but his friends had nicknamed him "Cupid," for the reason that he was small and plump, with a round, rosy, cherubic face and innocent blue eyes, and also because of his fatal tendency to bring about marriages among his acquaintances. A bachelor himself, "Cupid" Weedon lost no opportunity to mate men and maidens whenever they ventured into his vicinity. Thus he had married not only his pretty girl cousins, but even the plain and elderly ones who had long since despaired of matrimony. Many a contented bachelor had found himself engaged and married to some charming spinster or widow before he could catch his breath; or some inconsolable widower would take to himself a second wife—as the result of "Cupid" Weedon's personally conducted, whirlwind matrimonial campaigns.

As most of these marriages turned out happily—Cupid possessed a weird prescience of the affinity between congenial spirits—his beneficiaries were correspondingly grateful, and therefore he enacted the part of best man at innumerable weddings and never departed at the gifts called forth on these occasions or the christening cups which as godfather he presented later on.

At last the day came when most of Mr. Weedon's friends had entered the married lists and his occupation seemed to have ceased. But still there remained his friend and bosom companion, Hilary Ingram, who had just returned from a trip around the world, handsome, rich, unattached and heart untamed, and consequently Cupid's active brain and his kind heart co-operated to find a suitable mate for Hilary.

Hilary Ingram objected at the first intimation of his friend's interest in his behalf.

"See here, my fat friend," he said bluntly, "you may constitute yourself mixer of love philtres and minister extraordinary to the court of love, but I'll be hanged if I'll permit you to drag me into your matrimonial bureau."

Cupid Weedon eyed his friend doubtfully. "But you can't go on like this, old man. You ought not to be hanging around at hotels. What you need is a home where you can have your stuffed birds and animals sound," he added slyly.

"For that matter, why can't I put them in a museum? It would be much more appropriate than massing up a home," returned Hilary contemptuously. "Before you marry me off, Cupid, why don't you try a dose of your own medicine?"

"I may, some day," returned the matchmaker loftily, "provided I ever fall in love with a girl."

"Take it from me," predicted Hilary darkly, "that when you fall in love with a girl—then I, too, shall fall in love with her and cut you out."

"I dare say you will," was Cupid's grinning retort, and they resumed their golf.

Several weeks afterward it happened that Hilary Ingram discovered Cupid Weedon mooning about the country club. His blue eyes eagerly searched the occupants of motor cars as they stopped, and listlessly turned away when he had scanned the faces beneath the disguising veils.

"Who is she?" demanded Hilary.

"Who is who?" retorted Cupid shapishly.

"The one you are waiting for—the girl with the—what color eyes?"

"Blue," admitted the matchmaker.

"Blue as your own cornflower optics," commented Hilary. "I greatly fear you have made a miscalculation, my friend. You should have chosen brown eyes or black. I predict unhappiness in your married life with a dark man in the background."

"Who is the dark man?"

Hilary bowed. "Myself," he said modestly.

"Get out!" ordered Cupid, his eyes still aching the driveway.

"I shall remain," Cupid, protested Hilary firmly. "You may count on me for best man and—er—by Jove, who is that?"

"It's Miss Wail," breathed Mr. Weedon as he bounced down the steps and assisted a graceful form to alight from a luxuriously appointed car.

She was a lovely girl. She was gowned in a pale blue robe that fell about her feet in simple lines, and her flowing hair was of the same blue, trimmed with pink roses.

Hilary saw all this as she tossed off a big chiffon veil and loose coat, and an elderly woman followed and answered her call was ready to attend to her in the person of Major Demmet.

Hilary knew Major Demmet, and he resolved to seek out the major later and gain an introduction to Miss Wail.

"You will excuse me, Hilary," said Cupid as he passed his chum, "but I am lunching with friends."

They disappeared and Hilary found himself standing there on the piazza gazing after them with undoubted jealousy hammering at his heart. Why should he be jealous of a girl whom he had only gazed at for two moments and whose eyes had only met his in a sweeping, casual glance as she came up the steps?

He had met women of every nationality, and not one had ever brought him this thrill of fasting. It was a malevolent fate that had decreed he should fall in love with the only girl Cupid Weedon had really appeared personally interested in. He determined to go away.

Cupid Weedon intervened. Later in the day he introduced Hilary to Lucy Wail, and that was the beginning of the end, for the girl was attracted by the dark handsome man, and it soon came to be a secret that Hilary Ingram and Lucy Wail were in love with each other.

At last came the night when Hilary had his blissful answer, and, feeling like a traitor, he sought Mr. Weedon's apartment, prepared to receive almost any sort of condemnation from his friends' lips.

Mr. Weedon was seated before a snuffing fire, for it was November and the air was crisp. The lamplight shone on his slightly bald head, and shining through his straw-colored hair made him look like a halo-encircled cherub. He arose from his chair and held out a cordial hand.

"I've been expecting you, Hilary," he said, smiling.

"You heva?" muttered Hilary guiltily. "How long?"

"From the beginning," returned Cupid, settling a chair for him and pushing the box of cigars across the table.

"Cupid, old boy," murmured Hilary, "you don't know what a cur I feel! I didn't know that day when I predicted that when you—er—that I would—"

"You miscalculated my ability as a mixer of love philtres if you thought I'd let you escape my matrimonial net, Hilary!" laughed Cupid Weedon. "It was a put-up job on my part, and I must say that I never saw two people walk into a trap as did you and Lucy."

After Hilary had pounded his friend lustily, that plump young man condescended to listen to Hilary's rhapsodies. As Hilary paused for breath before beginning again, he noticed that Cupid Weedon's eyes had led their careless light and were sadly fixed on the darting flames.

"Cupid," said Hilary doubtfully, "you are sure—aren't you ever going to find the girl of your heart and follow the example of the rest of us?"

For answer Cupid detached a lock of hair from his watch fob and opening it, gave it to Hilary. Within was a picture of Hilary's younger sister, who had died a dozen years before. He was startled, for he had never suspected a romance between them.

"I found the girl of my heart and lost her again," said Cupid Weedon gravely, as he replaced the lockat.

"But I want all my friends to be as happy as I once hoped to be."

"HAVE A GOOD SLEEP, JACK"

Brooks Tells How His Thoughtful Wife Provides for His Rest Sunday Morning.

"I don't care very much about getting up early Sunday mornings," Mr. Ames confessed to Mr. Brooks, his seat-mate on the 8 o'clock train to town, "and my wife generally lets me sleep as long as I like."

"How is it when she's bound you shall go to church?" Mr. Brooks asked.

"How is it with your wife?" parried Ames.

"Along about 7 o'clock," Brooks replied readily, "my wife gets up."

"Don't you stir," she'll say; "have a good sleep."

"Then off comes a blanket. 'Just the top one,' she explains. 'You don't really need it for such a short time, and it will be airing.'"

"I go to the windows, that haven't been open all night, with a clam. 'O, isn't that refreshing,' she cries. 'It's going to be a perfectly lovely day!'"

"She steps briskly about, singing one of those songs so joyous that it puts you out at the first hit."

"If that doesn't work, she drops a hundredweight of silver stuff off the top of her dressing table on the floor. 'Whet!' in great surprise. 'Are you awake, Jack?'"

"I am awake and I say so," Brooks smiled was grim. "I hope she feels the reproach in my voice. Not at all."

"Well," she returns, "as long as you're awake, wouldn't you just as lief get up? If you will you'll have plenty of time to wash the dog before breakfast."

Ames smiled. "We haven't a dog," he said. "Youth's Companion."

Ames made a great inventor.

One time he was taking his bath, when the household was startled by hearing him exclaim: "Eureka!"

You see, he spoke Greek fluently.

A great man must be great, even in his bath, so when the interviewers asked him why he eurekaed so vociferously, instead of telling them that he had located the soap he had discovered that the amount of water displaced by the human body was equal in weight to the same. Thus, he disclosed the fact that in order to ascertain one's weight all one needs to do is to get into a bath tub, save the water he displaces, and weigh it.

Archimedes also announced that if he had a plane to use as a fulcrum, and a long enough lever, he could move the earth.

He neglected, however, to state where he would move the earth to.

He also invented the screw. Any one who has tried to remove an old door from its hinges may include Archimedes in his prayers.

The Reason.

"Our company has a man in its employ who is known to be light-fingered."

"Then why do you keep him?"

"Because he is an electrician."

A Vagabond Dreamer

By Dorothy Douglas

(Copyright, 1931, by Associated Literary Press.)

"You are trespassing on my property!" came a voice from the moon light.

Blair scrutinized the clump of bushes. He had supposed the white thing flitting about there to be a slim beam from the moon.

"But the gardeners never come down here and uncle is away, so it is all right." The voice was nearer to Blair than before.

He shaded his eyes and looked more closely. A low ripple of laughter accompanied his search.

"Here I am." She had parted the bushes and still Blair felt that a wedge of moonbeam had squeezed down through the trees. He stared at her with his hand shading his eyes.

"I can't see whether or not I like your eyes," she said half petulantly.

Blair obediently dropped his hand and turned toward the light that came from the small door of his caravan. The dreamer's look was in his eyes and the dreamer's whimsical smile on his lips.

Molly looked at him with grave eyes for a moment. "What are you doing here?" she asked, edging nearer to him.

"Looking for fairies—like you," he said in the tone of one speaking to a child.

"I am eighteen." She resented his tone. "And then what do you do?"

"I weave them into fairy tales."

"I suppose that you mean you are a writer and that your name is in all the big magazines?"

"About that," he smiled.

"Couldn't I just have one peep into your caravan?" she asked. "It looks so cozy."

"It is cozy." He was amused at her quaint curiosity. "I will have to lift you up on the step."

"Isn't it darling!" She turned toward him. "I didn't know gypsies had such exquisite—"

"But I am not a gypsy," put in Blair, and in the darkness a strange bitterness crept into his eyes. "If I were I would shut that door with you inside and lash up my ponies!"

"Oh, wouldn't that be lovely!" She clapped her hands joyously. "But poor uncle would never get over it."

"He has managed to survive other losses." Again that pained bitterness swept into the vagabond's eyes.

"You know he is not really my uncle." She had not noticed his remark. "I have lived here only five years. I'm adopted and Uncle Gray is going to give me all his money," she confided naively.

"So I understand," Blair said.

"You have heard of me?" Molly's eyes opened wide.

"I have heard of the protégé of John Gray—yes. But I had not known she was so—grown up," he finished lamely.

"Well—beautiful then." He looked deep into his eyes.

She returned the look wonderingly. "Oh, oh—I feel such a funny little thrill inside—here!" She clasped both hands over her breast; and stood gazing at him.

Blair turned swiftly away from the innocent awakening in his eyes.

"Perhaps you had better come down from my caravan." His own voice was a trifle husky. "Or I will be tempted to become a gypsy and run off with you."

"But I don't want to come down. I feel happy—I want to sing—and dance—and—" She broke off abruptly and that wondering look swept Blair's own.

Blair was silent for a moment while he struggled against the tumult in his heart. This witch had breathed on hidden chords; he felt strangely unaccountable for his actions, his words.

"You are tired," he said faintly, "and little girls should be in bed at this time of night. Come!"

But Molly Ashwell stood still and looked down at the arms extended to lift her from the step, then her eyes traveled up to the face on which the light shone full.

"Do you know," she stated, "that you look very much like Uncle Gray?"

Blair turned swiftly from the glare of the lamp. "Come!" he said, and his voice held a note of command.

With a little hurt look in her eyes Molly put out her hands. For a breathing spell the universe seemed hung in midair. Molly tore herself free then and fled in the darkness.

Blair watched her go, a moonbeam darting from path to path and finally into the old rose garden and up the great stone steps between the guarding lions and out of his sight through the French windows.

For a long moment he sat staring at the windows through which she had gone. Finally he arose, untethered his horses, hitched them to the caravan and drove off into the night.

"She is too wonderful," his lips repeated. "I could not withstand her long."

Three years came and went before Molly Ashwell and the Vagabond Dreamer met, three years in which Blair eyes had worn a peculiar, brooding look—a look which John Gray had tried in vain to fathom or to lighten.

"You are not so happy looking yourself," she had chided him on one occasion.

He had grown a shade paler.

"I have cause—a terrible cause for being miserable—but I deserve it," was all he had said.

She glanced quickly at him now as they sat in the theater. The curtain went up on a new play. The scene was an interior.

"It is almost exactly like our drawing room!" exclaimed Molly breathlessly and waited for confirmation of her words.

John Gray neither answered nor seemed conscious of her presence.

As the play progressed Molly felt the peculiar tension that held John Gray. After a spasmodic clutch of the hands on the chair arms he remained as one turned to stone.

The play was the old, old story of the son who had frequented the stage doors and had been turned away from home by an irate parent. In this case the son had lived in the theatrical atmosphere merely as a stepping stone. He had run away from home to go on the stage that he might gain intimate knowledge of stagecraft.

The strong plot woven in this fabric was neither here nor there except that at the close of the last act the author, was enfolded forth.

He came from the wings.

"My son!"

John Gray sprang to his feet and held out a pair of shaking arms toward the man on the stage.

"My Vagabond Dreamer!" came a girl's voice through the hush that followed the meeting of father and son.

Regardless of the excited audience, the two men met and the older man clasped the other in his arms as if he was still a very small boy.

A suspended breath held the audience.

Finally the quiet tones of the vagabond went out to answer that unasked question.

"My father and I have been long estranged—I am too happy to say more, except that I thank you for receiving my play so kindly."

During the thunder of applause that followed a slim little figure slipped quickly out of the theater and into the great limousine that crept up to the curb at her call.

Her heart was beating painfully in dull, miserable beats.

"Nobody loves me," she wept softly into the kindly cushions.

She sat huddled and broken, neither seeing nor hearing the excited crowd that came forth from the theater.

It seemed ages before the two men, arm in arm appeared. Molly dried her eyes hastily and peered out as they approached.

The younger man glanced at the ear. Then Molly saw his hand go up to shade his eyes. He made a quick movement.

She was very near him and the limousine had turned into a darkened street when next she heard his voice.

"Mine! All mine," he whispered against her lips.

"Can we go in the caravan?" Molly asked by way of answer to his question of a moment later.

MISTOOK BEAR FOR FUR COAT

Member of the Association of Automobile Manufacturers Tells Story About Motor Wearing Apparel.

"The cold weather is coming on, and we shall soon see some very remarkable cold-weather motoring suits."

The speaker, Coker F. Clarkson of the Association of Automobile Manufacturers, sat in his New York office. He resumed:

"I'll be glad when cold-weather motoring clothes are made more easily. They give us such a shaggy look now, don't they? Did you ever hear about the performing bear?"

"Well, a country hotel, a good deal frequented by motorists, took in a showman and his performing bear, and one morning the bear escaped from the stable."

"Everybody fled before the animal. The hotel man, however, pursued it courageously. It entered the hotel, mounted the stairway, pushed open a bedroom door, and vanished."

"Then the hotel men, close behind, heard from the bedroom an angry exclamation in a feminine voice, and the words:

"Georga, dear, how often have I forbidden you to come into my room without knocking—and in your automobile coat, too!"

Certainly Not.

"Oh, only adjective is 'cute.'"

"Oh, well, even at that, she isn't half as tiresome as the man whose only adjective is 'classy.'"

HOME CIRCLE COLUMN.

COLUMN DEDICATED TO TIRED MOTHERS AS THEY JOIN THE HOME CIRCLE AT EVENING TIDE.

A Pen Painting of Heaven.

Heaven! What a name! It is a land without a storm, a country without a tempest, where there are no wars or fights or quarrels; no sick beds there, no aching heads or hearts, no bills to be paid or rents to become due; a people without poverty; a city without a cemetery; a domain without a darkness; a sea of delight with never a hillow or shipwreck; a garden without a weed; a place where no hospitals or asylums are ever built; no beggars there; no crying children; no breadless mouths; no shoeless feet; no policemen or sheriffs or constables; no saloons or brothels; no muddy mounds or twitching nerves; no aching teeth; no feverish blood; no undertakers nor physicians; no surgeon's knife or dentist's forceps; no drug stores, no crutches, or eye glasses, or ear trumpets; no smoking lamps or burnt-out wicks; heartbeats give away to heartstrings; sighs away to songs. Instead of the plow and the furrow, it is the sickle and the sheaf. The sower's sack is replaced by the barn of fulness. The pruning knife is not to be found, neither the harrow nor the hoe. In that happy land the neighbor is no stranger, and the king is the personal friend of all. There it is not work to live, but live to work. There is no toll in the heavenly service, nor fainting under heavy strains. There are no loads to carry. It is a land where everyone helps himself to what he wants, and giving does not impoverish the giver. There they never solicit funds for church erection, nor take up collections to meet deficiencies. It is a land of rest. The traveler has reached his terminus, the hunter his happy hunting ground, the weary head has found its pillow, the pursued of Satan has found a refuge, the friendless have found a thousand friends, the homeless live in mansions, and a beggar could make a man rich with his over-supply.

Effects of Good Reading.

Childhood is truly the time to acquire knowledge; a healthy child is never still or idle. Every moment he is awake he is learning something. And all his knowledge of the world is obtained through his five or six senses as some count them, but he learns most, as we guess we all do, from what he is told, from what he sees, and from reading. Before he knows one letter from another he will look at pictures for an hour at a time and tell him about what he sees, his tongue is as busy as his eyes. His little brain must do some thinking to keep both members busy. What he learns from a picture book cannot be calculated.

As soon as the child is old enough, if he is not provided with reading material, there are only two ways for him to do, either to find books and papers for himself, or to spend his time in some other way. As what a child reads has such a power over his whole life, it is very important that parents be careful about what their children read. If a taste or desire for reading or study is not formed early in life it is probable it never will be, or if a passion for the worthless sensational print he acquired a desire. Negligence or thoughtlessness of parents on this question is often the cause of lifelong regret.

"Press On."

This is a speech, brief, but full of inspiration, and opening the way to all victory. It solves the problem of all heroes; it is the rule by which to weigh rightly all wonderful successes and triumphant marches of fortune and genius. It should be the motto of all old and young, high and low, fortunate and unfortunate, so-called: "Press on!" Never despair, never be discouraged, however dark the way, however stormy the heavens; however great the difficulties and repeated the failures: "Press on!" If fortune has played false with thee today, do thou play true for thyself tomorrow. If an unfortunate bargain has deranged thy business, do not fold thy arms and give up all as lost, but stir thyself and work the more vigorously. Let the foolishness of yesterday make thee wise today. If another has been false to thee, do not 'hou increase the evil by helag false to thyself. Do not say the world has lost all its poetry and beauty; 'tis not so; and even if it be so, make thine own poetry and beauty by living a true and unblemished life.

What a pure, blessed region is the open country. None should go away from it forever, and some should never leave it, so full is it of purity and beauty. Its beauty is the basis of some of the fine arts, and the inspiration of all. Culture is no more the power to appreciate an orchestra or an opera than the power to appreciate the songs of birds. It requires as much culture to appreciate a field of blooming clover as to appreciate a gallery of art. True culture is not the power to appreciate a book, a picture, or an opera; it is the power that detects the anthem of the moralists; that can hear a robin sing without soothing it; the power to walk carefully upon the earth's carpeting of flowers. It agrees even the bruised reed. This is the suture of earth and heaven.

Never forsake a friend. When enemies gather around, when sickness falls on the heart, is the time to try true friendship. They who turn from the scenes of distress betray their hypocrisy and prove that interest only can move them. If you have a friend who loves you—who has studied your interest and happiness—be sure to sustain him in adversity. Let him feel that his former kindness is appreciated, and that his love was not thrown away. Real fidelity may be rare, but it exists—in the heart. They only deny its worth and power who have never loved a friend or labored to make one happy.

During the summer months mothers of young children should watch for any unusual looseness of the bowels. When given prompt attention at this time serious trouble may be avoided. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy can always be depended upon. For sale by Louisa Drug Co.

OUR SCHOOL DEPARTMENT.

Dear Trustee:

Owing to the many complications arising under this new school law, and in order that we may all arrive at a better understanding of the same, especially that part relative to enforced attendance, and the enforcement of the Graded Course of Study in all the schools, the County Board of Education has deemed it wise to provide for the payment of the expenses of every trustee in the county in order that they may attend Wednesday's session of the Teachers' Institute, July 17th. That day will be known as Trustees' Day. The new school law will be explained in all its phases and a uniform system for conducting the schools planned.

Supervisor T. J. Coates, of Frankfort, Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart, of Rowan county, and Mrs. Chas. P. Weaver, of Louisville, President of Kentucky School Improvement League, will be present and address the Institute on that day.

It would be greatly to the interest of the schools of the county if the trustees could attend the full session of the Teachers' Institute and as many as can are urged to do so, but those who cannot are urged to be present on Wednesday, July 17th. Their expenses for that day will be paid and I will guarantee that you will not regret attending.

The interests of the little children in your district demand that you do all in your power to aid in securing better schools and you can help the cause in no better way than by meeting together on this occasion, discussing the difficult questions arising under the new school law, and getting in closer touch with the best methods of administering the laws.

By so doing we will be able to work in unison throughout the county, according to one intelligent system, and with every trustee, teacher and County Superintendent working along the same lines, our schools are bound to improve.

I trust every trustee in the county will be present on Trustees' Day and if possible bring some of the patrons of your school with you.

It is more important that the trustees and patrons attend the Institute than the teachers themselves. If successful, is about 9-10 inspirational and 1-10 educational and its success depends entirely on the interest it arouses for better schools throughout the county.

The trustee's attention is hereby called to the law regarding books for "indigent" children. Within two weeks of the opening of the school, the trustee should make a census of the district and urge all patrons to send their children to school, and if any children are unable to attend because they are too poor to purchase books, they must report to me these facts, stating the name of each parent and child and the number and names of books needed. The County Board has decided that the books should not be ordered until the school begins, so that the teacher may determine just what books are needed, but the trustee must see that the children attend the first day of the school, so that the teacher may select the proper books and report to me at once.

Trusting that this will be the banner year for Lawrence county schools and that I will meet with every progressive trustee in the county on Trustees' Day at the Teachers' Institute, I am,

Most respectfully yours,

JAY O'DANIEL, Supt.

"Bill Brown and his brother, of Tygart, tried to have things their own way and got the worst of the bargain. Just because the girls wouldn't dance with Bill, he proceeded to shoot up the platform and run the dancers away. Clifford and Bob Reed tried to stop Brown which resulted in Cliff Reed pulling his gun Brown ran and Reed fired eight or ten shots at him, two taking effect. It is said, one in the heel and one in the hip. He is not seriously injured.

"Bob Reed hit the other Brown in the mouth and nose with his fist and the next day he required the services of a physician."

WALTHAM
WATCHES

WE ARE NOW SELLING A 1-JEWEL WATCH, 16-SIZE, MADE BY THE WELL KNOWN WALTHAM WATCH COMPANY FOR $5.50 COMPLETE IN A SILVERINE CASE, OR $6 IN A 20-YEAR GOLD FILLED CASE. NOTICE THAT THIS IS THE POPULAR 16-SIZE WATCH WHICH HAS HERETOFORE SOLD FOR NOT LESS THAN $7.50 IN SILVERINE CASE. THE 16-SIZE IS A SIZE SMALLER THAN THE 18, WHICH IS THE FULL-SIZE GENTLEMAN'S WATCH. THE 16 IS NOT TOO LARGE, IT IS JUST RIGHT.
